Root Destroyer

Roots from trees and shrubs frequently find their way into drain lines and sewer pipes through extremely small cracks, holes or poorly sealed joints. These tiny root hairs—if not properly controlled—can continue to grow inside your lines, blocking water flow and even causing the pipes to break.

Worst of all, once these roots grow in a specific direction, they'll continue to grow back in that same direction—causing similar blockage problems later. So—to really solve the problem—once the offending roots are removed, you have to retard their future growth.

What to Do When You Suspect Roots Are Blocking Your Drain Lines and Sewer Pipes

If the flow of water is slow through your drain line—but before it's completely blocked—call the Roto-Rooter company listed in the yellow pages of your telephone directory. Roto-Rooter service technicians have the proper training and equipment to cut through root blockages and restore flow to your line.

In addition, your Roto-Rooter service technician can advise you on the necessary steps to prevent the problem from reoccurring. For example, a twice-a-year application of Roto-Rooter® Root Destroyer can retard the growth of roots near your drain line; all you have to do is pour the recommended dosage into your toilet bowl and flush the product into the line. Roto-Rooter Root Destroyer will kill only the roots growing into the pipes and will not affect the rest of your plant's root systems.
